SWINE PROJECTS POPULAR IN 4-H

Many pigs were bred and fed and sent to market by 4-H'ers in Virginia last year.

Swine projects are among the most popular in 4-H, and over 1,500 club members completed projects involving around 5,000 hogs last year, say state 4-H livestock specialists at VPI.

Club members may select one or more types of projects, including those on breeding pigs, sow and litter, or market hogs. Through the projects the boys and girls learn about the proper type of breeding animals to select, feeding methods, housing and equipment, and marketing. Largest enrollment in all meat animal projects is in the market hog project. Last year over 700 club members completed market hog projects involving over1,500 head. Nine junior market hog shows and sales were held with 261 exhibitors and 713 animals, grossing over $27,000.

Junior market hog shows and sales are tentatively scheduled this spring at: Smithfield, March 12; Fredericksburg, April 7; Roanoke, April 14-15; Staunton, April 21, and Richmond, May 3.

The club members are learning to produce, feed, show, and sell meat type hogs. The livestock specialists explain that meat type hogs are those which consistently reproduce themselves in litters of eight or more pigs. They are are hogs which, at market weights of 190 to 220 pounds, will have a minimum amount of carcass fat and enough muscling for meaty cuts of pork.

SELECT TOBACCO PLANT BED WITH CARE

The location of the tobacco plant bed makes a difference, profit-wise.

Agricultural specialists say new plant bed sites in well protected woodland areas usually result in good plant protection. However, such sites are not always available and many growers must rely on field soils for plant beds.

The specialists say where field soils must be used, growers should select an area of suitable soil that will be large enough to provide for rotation. A southern exposure is preferred, and be sure there is plenty of water and proper windbreaks. If nematodes are a problem, treat the beds.

As soon as planting is complete, destroy remaining plants and seed the bed areas in a cover crop such as crotalaria, velvet beans, root knot resistant soybeans, or cow peas.

HENS LAY MORE EGGS

Egg production in Virginia jumped to about 200 eggs per bird during 1959, according to preliminary reports from the State Department of Agriculture.

And even though there was a decrease in price per dozen, the total gross income from eggs in the state jumped from about 31.8 milion dollars to some 34 million. This marks the biggest increase in egg production that has been reported during the past 20 years, according to Denver D. Bragg, VPI poultry specialist.

He notes a marked improvement in egg handling practices and grading plant facilities. There has been a 33 per cent increase in the volume and a three per cent increase in the percentage of grade "A" or better eggs going through Federal-State grading plants during the past year.

Several new poultry houses were constructed in '59, although not nearly as many as in 1958. But a greater percentage of them were mechanized operations or units that offer better control of the birds' environment.

FARMERS HOME ADMR. HAS NEW LOAN POLICY

The Farmers Home Administration has liberalized its loan policies for part-time farmers, Hunter P. Evans, County FHA Supervisor said today.

Part-time farmers working small farms may now obtain short-term loans for operating and family living expenses. The loans are for one crop year and are secured by liens on crops, also on livestock and on equipment if available.

These loans are designed to take care of the annual credit needs of small farmers with limited crop acreage allotments and other farmers considered as hardship cases, who do not have adequate credit available.

More information on this and other types of loans available to farmers through the Farmers Home Administration can be obtained at the county FHA office, located in the Watson Building, Farmville, Va.

The office located in Farmville serves Amelia, Appomattox, and Prince Edward Counties. Mr. Evans also has regular hours at Appomattox at the ASC office each Tuesday from 9:00 to 9:30 A. M.

EXTRA DAY GRANTED ON CAR STICKERS

Richmond, Va.- The Department of State Police has announced that all inspection stickers due for February expiration will be valid through February 29, rather than February 28 as it noted on the reverse of the stickers.

State Police officials explained that inspection stickers are printed well in advance and in very large quaitities and thus it is felt that it would be impractical to have separate printings for February stickers each Leap Year.

Ice Traps Duck

Asheville, N. C.- When a duck sleeping in a lake awoke recently, he found that his tail feathers were frozen in ice.

By midafternoon, word of the duck's plight brought crowds, a traffic jam around city-owned Beaver Lake, and the Fire Department. The duck's dilemma was solved by Harry A. Guter, who used a Fire Department grappling hook to haul himself in a small skiff across the 100 yards of ice to the grounded fowl. The duck was transferred to the open waters of a lake.

Mongrel Coin

Tulsa, Okla.- It's a penny, or maybe a quarter, but in either case, to Tulsan C. O. Riley, it could spell dollars.

Riley, an active coin collector, has come up with a coin the exact color of a penny, slightely larger than a nickel, and containing markings of a quarter. The new coin was received by a Tulsa bank in a shipment of new quarters, and is what dealers term "a minting error."
